Choctawhatchee High School, originally located in Shalimar, opened in 1952. The school's name, meaning "coming together," was chosen through a local contest. Initially, it served grades 7-12, exceeding its capacity with 625 students. The school later relocated to its current location in Fort Walton Beach, with the original site becoming Meigs Middle School. The "Lady Indians" is the name of the women's athletic teams. The Lady Indians Soccer team needs your support, so please donate, sign up for sponsorship, and buy tickets today!
